Diff search shows it works. Not sure why. A similarly named file here indicates following pic is still somehow from this same source? A pdf might be better?

Note that the Confessional Association was from the older Dutch Reformed Church.

6. Br. P. JELLESMA te Varsseveld.

Des Zondags morgens ,wordt de Evangelisatie door ongeveer 600 hoorders bezocht, terwijl meestens 15 personen de Kerk bezoeken, waar tot dusverre twee moderne predikanten het woord voerden. Een hunner, de voornaamste woordvoerder, gaat Varsseveld verlaten. „Een ding staat „bij mij vast: God breekt de modernen af door hen zelven."

On Sunday mornings, about 600 listeners visit the Evangelization, while at most 15 people visit the Church, where two modern pastors have spoken so far. One of them, the main spokesperson, will leave/ is leaving Varsseveld. "This thing is certain to me: God breaks down the modern ones through them."

However Brummelkamp, a prof. from the CRC seminary in the Netherlands, approved of the meetings; "… he was inclined, especially initially, to appreciate the revivals positively." (Per te Velde's biography.)

This sort of gathering seems major enough to be able to find some confirmation of it?
The DBNL archive might be referring to the same gathering or at least to the same type of one.

“Three judgments concerning the Seceders in Varsseveld are kept in the archives of the District Court in Zutphen; they were rendered in 1839 and 1840.
On June 30, 1839, a 'gathering' of more than twenty persons was held at the home of AJ Klompenhouwer; the Lord's Supper was administered and some members made a confession of faith. Nearly two hundred persons were present. Thirty to forty persons participated in the Lord's Supper. The mayor of Wisch notes in his official report that 'such gatherings are held every Sunday'. Anthony Brummelkamp led the service. Although Arent Colenbrander, 32 years old, farmer, Lammert Rademaker and Dirk Veldhorst, 35, farmer, were initially charged, they were acquitted by the court on October 1, 1839. They were merely present but performed no acts of management – AJ Klompenhouwer wisely collected the offering himself. On the same date mentioned above, A. Brummelkamp was sentenced to pay ƒ 100,- and AJ Klompenhouwer to ƒ 50,-.39
By judgment of October 7, 1840, Klaas Wildeboer, 30, minister of the Divine Word, born in Oude Pekela and residing in Rijssen, as well as AJ Klompenhouwer, were convicted for a religious service held at the latter's farm on August 19. Wildeboer received a fine of ƒ 50, Klompenhouwer ƒ 25.40
Finally: on November 25, 1840, A. Brummelkamp, 'minister of the congregation of the Seceders in Schiedam', and AJ Klompenhouwer were convicted for a gathering held on October 5, 1840, at the latter's farm. Approximately 300 people were present. Brummelkamp, a familiar face to the court, was fined ƒ 100, and Klompenhouwer ƒ 50.41
